Division On Hairy Question
As it is news, it is reported that longhairs are now in the majority on college campuses. (Remember when a "longhair" was a rather not-with-it square?) To be specific, a Gallup College Survey reveals that 23 per cent of males like their hair long but not over the ear, 20 per cent wear it over the ear but not down to the shoulder, and seven per cent go all the way.

But what is really surprising is that 45 per cent of those polled still prefer the traditional shorter length, including the crewcut. That's what the man says.

The figures don't add up to 100 per cent. Maybe the difference represents the premature baldies, who don't have any choice either way. — Savannah (Ga.) Evening Press

What One Man Can Do
And then there was the $10,000 award to consumer advocate Ralph Nader from a foundation. He was cited for major achievements toward improving the quality of human life. A most worthy endeavor for honors.

The foundation said Nader had "almost singlehandedly made our cars safer, our food more pure, our government more open and responsive, and our corporations more aware of our demands."

That's a large bouquet of throw to any person, recognizing human limitations and the nature of the problem. But the consumer crusader is certainly deserving.

In an era when many wonder what influence they can exert, and when many others are apathetic, Nader has provided an inspiring example of what one man can do. Far more than most would have presumed. — Atlanta (Ga.) Journal

Penn-Central Dropping 8,900 Jobs

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A total of 8,900 Penn Central jobs would be phased out, resulting in a reported annual savings of $135 million, if the federal government acts favorably on a request by Penn Central Transportation Co. trustees.

The trustees said Monday the savings, coupled with a program of improved operations, "would put Penn Central back in the black."

The railroad wants the federal government to set aside crew-size laws in Ohio and Indiana.

Many states have abandoned such "ful crew" laws. But Ohio requires five-man crews and Indiana requires six-man crews.

The trustees said in a statement the 8,900 jobs could be eliminated if the railroad could go to three-man crews, the standard in most states.

Without this reduction in the labor force, the trustees said, the railroad would have to shut down by November or December.

The surplus jobs would be phased out through attrition and through negotiations with unions, the Penn Central said. A railroad spokesman said jobs would be terminated throughout the railroad, not merely in Ohio and Indiana.

New Senate Controversy Over Laos

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is heading toward new controversy over the U.S. military role in Laos, with Sen. Stuart Symington seeking a $200-million ceiling on American spending there.

Symington, D-Mo., said security classification prevents him from disclosing the amount being spent on U.S. air operations and support of forces fighting Communist units in Laos.

But the total was reported by other sources to be at least $250 million a year, and possibly much more.

While the Senate met in secret session Monday to discuss Laos, the State Department confirmed the United States is providing financial and other support to forces in Laos.

Press officer Charles Bray described those troops as volunteers, and said the U.S. support program is consistent with the law.

Symington said they are mercenaries. "My personal opinion is that the law has been contravened, yes."

Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., who proposed the amendment forbidding use of U.S. funds to support foreign forces fighting for the governments of Laos and Cambodia, said he thinks that law is being violated.

The amendment excludes actions that would help promote withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Vietnam, or release of American prisoners of war.

The closed session, seventh for the Senate in five years, lasted three hours and 25 minutes, more than twice as long as planned.

"I reported to them, in effect, that what was actually going on in Laos was quite different in some details than we have been told," said Symington, who proposed the secret session.

"We believe that quite a few Thai people, irregulars and regulars, are fighting in Laos. We think that contravenes the law recently passed by Congress."

"We would have known more about it if there had been a ceiling on the money they could have spent and they would have had to come before us to ask for more authority," Symington said.

Perfect Wife: Alas, She Never Finishes What She's Started

By JAKE BOOHER
Associated Press Writer
FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — I fully realized, on getting married three years ago, that Mary and I would have to make adjustments for each other's eccentricities.

But, I thought, who could ask for more in a wife? As a professional home economist, she knows all the old and new tricks of cooking, sewing and running a household. And being very talented with her hands, Mary is excellent with handicrafts, decorations and do-it-herself.

There is one catch. She almost never finishes anything she starts.

We've got unfinished business around our apartment you wouldn't dream of. It's stuffed in closets, stacked in corners, slid under beds, jammed in drawers, laying on tables. It's both hidden away and in plain sight. And it's endless.

Take, for example, the hooked rug that she started making two years before we were married. It's 4 by 6 feet, and is from a pattern she designed herself. When we married, it was about 8-10ths finished. Now, I estimate it's about 17-20ths finished.

All the time, it's been sitting in the corner of our living room. Kind of a conversation piece.

Famous Old Edgewater Gulf Hotel Goes on Block at Biloxi

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Even the auctioneer whimpered unashamedly when he spoke of the trappings of the regal Edgewater Gulf Hotel which went up for sale today.

The old place, once 600 acres of lazy land, had been a favorite national watering hole for 44 years.

"It's like the Queen Mary, an end of an era," sighed Morton Goldberg, auctioneer, himself a patron for years.

The eight-story hotel was a product of the free-spending, free-wheeling 1920s with an Olympic swimming pool, tennis courts, two golf courses and a spacious, shaded lawn.

In recent years a shopping center has chipped away at one section of the land and a department store will rise in the hotel's ashes.

The auction will go on for three days.

Everything is for sale, anything that can be dismantled. The 62-foot-long marble soda fountain in the basement is going.

A. P. Shoemaker, hotel manager for 16 years remembers the fountain as the place where he began his rise in hotel administration.

"I went to work there in 1930 as soda jerk ... I was assistant drugstore manager, then I ran the place a year. I was made auditor in 1934 and then manager in 1940," Shoemaker recalled.

On May 23 the hotel closed in special ceremonies with past patrons and employees invited to

Russians Tell Secrets of Space Station

By JAMES R. PEIPERT
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Three Soviet cosmonauts steered their space laboratory Salute into a higher orbit today to halt temporarily its gradual drop back to earth, Moscow radio reported.

The maneuver, effected by firing rockets aboard the craft, was needed in order to keep the station aloft for a longer period of time.

The 18-ton space station has been in earth orbit since April 19, and has been gradually drifting down into the upper reaches of the earth's atmosphere, where friction would disintegrate it.

The cosmonauts boarded the station Monday morning by crawling through a narrow passageway from their Soyuz 11 spaceship.

Soyuz 11 was launched Sunday morning and chased Salute through space for more than 26 hours before catching up and docking with it.

As of 1 p.m. Moscow time, or 6 a.m. EDT, the Salute-Soyuz had circled the earth 21 times with the cosmonauts aboard, the Soviet news agency Tass said at midday.

"The state of the on-board systems and the micro-climate in the compartments of the space station are normal," Tass said.

"Cosmonauts Georgy Dobrovolsky, Vladimir Volkov and Viktor Patsayev feel well and continue the planned research."

The Salute-Soyuz tandem is now circling the earth in an orbit with a high point of 164.6 miles and a low point of 148.5 miles. This is about 12.4 miles higher than the previous orbit.

Tass said the cosmonauts' on their second working day aboard the space station had breakfast and resumed checking out the spacecraft's equipment.

While the cosmonauts checked out equipment of the N.Y. Bridges Tied Up by Few Strikers

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Supervisors worked through the night and reopened seven of 25 drawbridges into Manhattan, easing massive traffic tieups today. But the city faced a new crisis as 1,500 sewage treatment workers walked off the job in an expanded strike action by municipal employees.

Another 300 employees at city incineraries were reported out on strike, a move that city officials said could lead to a critical problem of disposal of garbage.

Arthur Lewis, an executive assistant in the Department of Sanitation, said 11 of the city's 13 sewage treatment plants were closed as of 9 a.m. He said it could mean that raw sewage would have to be emptied directly into area rivers.

Mayor John V. Lindsay toured the city by helicopter during the morning rush hour and reported that traffic conditions were "much better than yesterday" when striking municipal employees left 25 drawbridges locked in an open position.

Of the seven bridges reopened, five spanned the Harlem River from Manhattan to the Bronx. That was the area hardest hit by Monday's surprise walkout in protest of the state legislature's refusal to approve the union's new pension plan.

Traffic today was reported heavy but moving.

Police remained assigned to key points in the city's water system to forestall any attempt by the union workers to shut off the supply to office complexes in midtown and lower Manhattan.

Union leaders met for an hour Monday night with Lindsay, who threatened to ask for a callup of the National Guard.

He said they "listened respectfully" as he told them the strike was "an outrage to the public" but that they refused to say whether the stoppage would escalate as threatened.

The walkout caught commuters by surprise Monday and created mammoth traffic jams that left both the autos and their occupants steaming on the hottest day of the year.

Britain About to Enter Common Mart

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — Britain has cleared a major hurdle in her bid to enter the European Common Market by agreeing to gradually end the pound sterling's role as a world reserve currency.

Acceptance of the British pledge by the six Common Market countries was announced Monday night after another long negotiating session with Geoffrey Rippon, Britain's Common Market negotiator.

"We are prepared to envisage an orderly and gradual rundown of official sterling balances after our accession," Rippon said.

As banker for the sterling bloc, Britain is the depository for more than $5 billion in currency reserves of other nations. Common Market members felt that with Britain in the monetary union they hope to set up, they might be endangered if a run developed on the sterling reserves.

In his presentation, Rippon also said that after becoming a member Britain will be ready to discuss how to line up sterling with the economic and monetary union, targeted for 1980.

Rippon also said Britain would be in line with Common Market practices on capital movements by 1978. This involves preferences given to sterling-area countries in borrowing in London.

The market's executive commission expressed dissatisfaction with the agreement, but this is not expected to have any effect. Raymond Barre, vice president in charge of monetary affairs, told newsmen the British pledge did not contain the necessary precautions and guarantees for such an important issue.

The negotiators still have to work out the rising scale on which Britain will contribute to the market's budget, how much access fishermen of the other six nations are to have to Britain's territorial waters and special arrangements for New Zealand's exports of dairy products to Britain.

Another negotiating session is scheduled June 21-23 in Luxembourg.

The six Common Market members are France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

AEC Wants Tighter Standards

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission has proposed tightening federal radiation standards for protecting the public from nuclear power reactors.

AEC spokesmen said Monday the new plan is a result of two years of exploration and discussion and not a reaction to critics—notably Drs. John Hoffman and Arthur Tamplin, who contend current standards could result in a dramatic increase in cancer cases.

While radiation exposures to the public from atomic power plants "have been only small fractions" of those permitted under the present standards, the commission said, the AEC wants to be ready with guidelines for bigger plants on the drawing board.

The commission proposals, now subject to discussion in an informal public hearing, apply to "light-water" reactors—the only type being installed in relatively large numbers.

Harold Price, chief of the AEC's regulation sector, told a news conference any plant not meeting the new regulations could be warned, fined, or closed. "Nuclear power plants would be designed to limit radioactivity in effluents (discharged gases and other materials) to levels that would keep resultant radiation exposures to persons living near the plants to less than 5 percent of the average natural background radiation under the proposed guidelines"

AEC said. "Such exposures would be about 1 per cent or less of the federal radiation protection guides for individual members of the public," Gofman and Tamplin, both of the AEC's Livermore, Calif., facility, have been demanding for more than a year that present standards be tightened at least tenfold.

mark the death. The hotel was the creation of a Chicago architect, Benjamin Marshall who patterned it after an earlier project, Chicago's Edgewater Beach Hotel.

Famous people walked across the lobby's red carpet: New York Gov. Al Smith helped inaugurate it. Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York City relaxed there. So did one-time Kentucky Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler and former President Harry S. Truman.

Entertainers also found their way: Veronica Lake, Jeannette MacDonald.

"Errol Flynn spent part of a night here. He left when a large tour showed up," Shoemaker said. "Rin Tin Tin came but couldn't stay because house rules prohibited dogs."

Shoemaker recalled a visit from singer-actor Al Jolson.

"I chartered a fishing boat. The captain was so nervous having Al Jolson aboard, he ran aground and we spent the day waiting for the tide to come in," he said.

Since the hotel has shut its doors to overnight guests, the curious and the nostalgic have flocked. Goldberg estimates 20,000 in two weeks.

An aide to Goldberg, Martin Zuckerman, said he has never seen such melancholia as shown by souvenir hunters to the hotel.

"Two old women, they must have been in their 70s, bought a chest. They took it down and put it on a truck themselves," he said. "And the old people from Chicago came here crying over the place. And young honeymooners come back."

When some furnishings were sold in a pre-auction sale, Zuckerman said, people were pulling blankets, room keys, ash trays and door knobs each putting his own "sold" tag on an item that had the hotel's initials or name.

Missouri Anti-Abortion Law Killed

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's 136-year-old abortion law has been held unconstitutional by a St. Louis County Circuit Judge.

Judge Herbert Lasky, ruling Monday on a suit entered last year by four physicians, three clergymen and three married women of child-bearing age, called the state law unconstitutional, vague and indefinite.

Defendants in the suit, Atty. Gen. John Danforth and County Prosecuting Atty. Gen. McNary, said they will appeal Lasky's ruling.

Lasky said the Missouri law violates the 1st, 4th, 5th, 9th and 14th amendments as well as denying equal protection under the law.

Under the law, he said, abortion in the state is considered manslaughter except in cases where the life of the mother is endangered.

"A statute which is stated in terms so vague that men of ordinary intelligence must guess as to its meaning and differ as to its application violates due process of law," Lasky's ruling added.

Constitutional rights he contended the law violates are those including the right to give and to receive medical advice or treatment, the right to privacy and the right to choose whether to bear and rear children.

Equal protection under the law is denied under the statute, he added, because of the phrase included which prohibits abortion "unless ... necessary to preserve her life."

The phrase, Lasky said, does not include cases of rape, incest, or possibly psychological damage to the prospective mother.

station, a forerunner for big Soviet space platforms, the Soviet government proposed an international treaty to ban hostile use of the moon.

The 18-ton Salute was launched seven weeks ago and the cosmonauts, sent into space aboard Soyuz 11 Sunday, linked up with Monday and climbed through into the scientific station.

Konstantine P. Feoktistov, a veteran spaceman helping with ground control on the current mission, reported the two-craft "complex" is about 65.6 feet long, basically cylindrical in shape and has a volume of about 388 cubic feet. The Salute end is about 12 feet in diameter.

Feoktistov gave this description of Salute in an interview with the Communist party newspaper Pravda:

"There is a cone with a docking unit at the end of it, then a small cylinder with a diameter of about two meters (6.5 feet) then a certain expansion of the cylinder to a diameter of three meters (9.8 feet) then a widening to roughly four meters (13.1 feet)."

"All these cylinders are hermetically sealed. Then comes a spherical bottom and a cone-fuel tanks, engine installations are mounted in a rear cylinder with a diameter of roughly two meters."

The space station has two pairs of wing-like solar battery units protruding from it.

Cosmonauts board Salute through the once at the front end. This is called the "passage compartment" and it has "several control panels," but Feoktistov did not say what they were for.

"Then comes the hatch leading to the basic compartment—the working one."

"After the hatch there is a small platform. Two cosmonauts sit in their work seats facing the hatch. In front of them are several control and instrument panels, and on their sides—command and signal equipment of Soyuz-type and apparatus."

Feoktistov said the docking collars on Soyuz 11 and Salute are "essentially new." He said the "design makes it possible to provide for a more rigid tightening of the spacecraft after docking so that their butt ends should come as closely together as possible."

"A more effective principle of hermetic sealing has been developed."

MRS. MARY DAY HERNDON

Mrs. Mary Day Herndon, Assistant Information Officer for the Arkansas State Highway Commission and editor of Arkansas Highway magazine, brought the 1971 State Highway Department color film to the Lions' luncheon Monday at the Town and Country.

The club has viewed the progress and publicity film for several years in succession. The film shows highway work in progress and completed projects. Hope's Donna Connelly, Miss Arkansas, and Margie Royston, Miss Congeniality, were seen in activities over the state. Lester Kent seen in his watermelon patch with three one-hundred-plus watermelons was also of interest to local viewers.

The film was made by professionals and the scenic views and views of bridges and highways are outstanding.

Lion Haskell Jones arranged the program. John King was the guest of his father, Lion Frank King. Jimmie Tate, formerly of Shreveport, now back in Hope, was the guest of his father, Lion W. L. Tate.

New Fog-Beater Is Suitable to Major City Ports Alone

By HOWARD BENEDICT

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP)

Science has found a way to disperse flight-delaying fog at airports but the method is so costly it is feasible only for busy airports, a NASA official reported today.

The procedure involves heating the air above the runway through a combustion-blower system which burns 28 pounds of kerosene a second, William A. McGowan of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said in a paper delivered at an air transportation conference.

"This might be achieved at a cost of $1,000 to $2,000 an hour, possibly an acceptable value, especially at busy airports," McGowan said. "The problem is that estimated of the initial cost of equipment needed to release this amount of energy in the required manner range from three to six million dollars."

"Such a system, therefore, can only be considered seriously for use at large airports with high traffic density," he added. He said scientific tests in the United States and France show that this heating method is effective in evaporating fog droplets and improving visibility for efficient airport traffic operations.

Experiments are under way in an attempt to lower the cost, and several large airports have indicated an interest in the system.

Tests are continuing on other means of ridding airports of fog.

McGowan said some progress has been made, especially by the Air Force, in using helicopter downwash to mix dry air from above into the fog to produce subsaturated conditions. With sufficient mixing the fog droplets evaporate and visibility improves.

"It appears to be applicable when fog depth is no more than 300 feet, and the effectiveness of this method might depend on the stage of the fog life cycle," the NASA official said. Depending on the amount of fog and area to be covered, the dispersal could be effected by two to four large helicopters, he added.

More research is needed into the potential problem of helicopter-generated turbulence within the cleared volume, he said.

McGowan said another meth-

Selection of Jury Completed

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — Jury selection was completed Monday in U.S. District Court here in the trial of two men charged with mail fraud in the sale of hunting dogs.

Bernard Gaer, 28, and M. O. King, 45, operators of the Ozark Coohound Kennels and the A-1 Kennels of Van Buren are accused of deliberately shipping dogs that did not live up to statements made in magazine advertisements, letters and telephone conversations.

Gaer and King are defendants in a 22-count indictment that alleges that 22 mail-order customers were defrauded on hunting hounds purchased between January 1966 and December 1970.

Defense attorney Douglas W. Parker of Fort Smith said in his opening remarks Monday that the government's case was based on "oversights and honest mistakes brought about by the volume of business" and other matters over which the defendants had no control. He said there was no intent to defraud anyone.

Belgian Monetary Genius Dies

BRUSSELS (AP) — Camille Gutt, the finance minister who masterminded an audacious monetary reform that made the postwar Belgian franc "The dollar of Europe," died in Brussels Monday. He was 86.

Gutt achieved fame in international financial circles in 1944 by a drastic overhaul of Belgium's currency shortly after the end of the German occupation.

In great secrecy, he blocked all bank accounts in Belgium. Then he made all currency greater than 20 francs—about 40 cents—valueless and issued new currency which had been printed secretly.

The action halted the enormous inflation built up during the years of occupation and made it possible for the treasury to collect huge sums on war profits by taxation and fines on all undeclared war revenue.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee's eight black Democratic legislators have taken advantage of a Republican Democratic squabble to put together the first effective black show of lawmaking power in modern times in the Deep South.

The eight—six representatives and two senators—managed to take the balance of power in both houses of Tennessee's 87th General Assembly late in the session, which ended May 31.

The rise of black power in the legislature was made possible by the rise of Republican power. The Republicans, by claiming the governor's chair, 43 House seats and 13 Senate seats, forced the narrowing Democratic majority to depend on the Negro lawmakers to pass party bills when conservative Democrats balked.

The Democrats needed 50 votes to pass their party bills in the House and 17 in the Senate. The party could muster only 47 votes without the six Negro House members and 16 without the black senators.

In no other Southern state has the two-party system established itself to the point where the Democrats must rely on Negroes to maintain the party's position. And for the first time in Tennessee, the white Democratic leaders openly admitted their need for the black votes.

"One of the reasons the Democrats control the House and Senate is the black vote," Rep. Alvin King of Memphis, a Negro, told the House Democratic caucus.

Rep. Ned McWherter, the caucus chairman who is white, said "we have to help Mr. King and his associates and we need your help, Alvin, this is a two-way street."

McWherter led the battle to run through the reluctant House a series of bills to establish a minimum wage, prohibit harassment by bill collectors, and to study discrimination.

In the Tennessee Senate, where the repeal of capital punishment—another Negro-sponsored bill—had failed earlier in the year, Sen. Avon Williams, a Negro civil rights lawyer from Nashville, got passage of a resolution which had the same effect for at least two years. It asked the governor to delay any executions until the next General Assembly considers the question.

The minimum wage bill and a redistricting plan were blocked in the Senate Commerce Committee by white Democratic conservatives.

Our neighbors, seeing a man load what they thought was "stolen goods" into his car "in the middle of the night," rushed out with shouts of "Stop Thief!" and stuck a shot gun in his face, while the women hopped around saying the police were on their way.

Sure enough, they were. It took half an hour of explaining to get the embarrassed fellow off the hook, as by that time a crowd had gathered and everyone was telling a different story, plus trying to be in on the capture.

I haven't heard from him since. What can I say that will bring him around again?—NEIGHBORED OUT

Dear N. O.:
If you two can't joke about this by now, then maybe you'd never make music together. A humorous card of "apology" should be sufficient—especially if you add, "Our neighbors now take sleeping pills."—H.

I go to school with bruises, and when my friend asks how I got them I can't tell her, because it's my mother.

I get the knocks for what my brothers do. They won't obey, and she takes it out on me. Almost every day I get a beating, I guess because she thinks that's the only way she can make my brothers behave. It doesn't work very well.

How can I get adopted out? If I don't soon, I'll run away.—HURTING

Dear Hurting:
Let the school nurse see your bruises. If your mother's beatings are this severe, she needs psychiatric help, and YOU need a foster home. The nurse will contact the proper agencies.—H.

Dear Helen:

In my spare time I do volunteer work in a mental institution. I've noticed that what these sick people need more than anything else is love. Many of them get very little from their families, who leave them to rust away, not even visiting or writing except perhaps once a year.

Not long ago a girl asked what she could do, without planned entertainment this summer. She could find lots of very rewarding things to do at State Hospitals, where she could help take the place of families that don't come around any more—TRUE FEELINGS

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The legality of the U.S. military involvement and the conduct of the war in Vietnam was the subject of an illuminating two-hour discussion on the public broadcasting stations Monday night.

The big questions debated were whether the United States was violating international rules of war and how far up the chain of command responsibility for war crimes committed in the field should go.

A large group of people with special relationship to the subjects—lawyers, professors of international law, veterans, a war correspondent and two men accused of war crimes—voiced opinions.

The program format was vaguely like a trial. Telford Taylor, a prosecutor in the Nuernberg war crime trials and now a professor law, stated his opinions and the rest of the discussion swung around his thesis about the illegality of the U.S. posture.

Taylor asserted—and there was general agreement—that nations are bound by decisions at Nuernberg about accountability for crimes against peace and humanity.

There was also general agreement that the rules of war relating to protection of civilians and humane treatment of prisoners are being violated. Some argued this was not deliberate or ordered from the top. It was repeatedly pointed out that the guerrilla character of the conflict and the difficulty of telling friend from foe were partly responsible. There also seemed to be general agreement that responsibility for war crimes should be traced as high in the leadership echelons as there was evidence of malfeasance.

Robert MacNeil presided over the session firmly. He politely cut off panelists who generalized or moved away from the main themes. The session remained on a gratifyingly impersonal plane with frequent rebuttals but without arguments. It was a cool, earnest inspection of a subject that usually arouses emotions and temperatures.

Give 'em a Chance and Interest Rates Will Always Go Up

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — If people think interest rates are going to go up, they'll go up.

That is one economist's perhaps oversimplified view of why homebuyers are finding mortgage interest rates creeping upward again. But it may be the best explanation of the movement baffling many economic experts.

The law of supply and demand is being bent, if not broken. There is plenty of money around to lend. Savings and loan associations, banks and insurance companies are enjoying record flows of cash.

It is a classic situation that calls for downward pressure on rates, or at least stabilizing money costs. But the upward pressure is real. And the argument that they're going up because people say they are crops up in more sophisticated economic explanations.

The pressure comes in the money markets, the high-finance deals that most people know little about. "Expectations of higher rates in the future," is how one government economist explains the upward push on interest rates. Translated, that means money managers expect money will not be so plentiful a year from now, and conclude:

Why lend money at cheaper rates now if they can get a better return for it next year? There may be some justification in that thinking. The economy went through a recession last year. Money was tight, interest rates high. And the economic recovery is still in its early stages.

"Markets have swung so widely that financial managers are looking more to the future," says Preston Martin, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. One thing economists point to is a rise in the interest rates on long-term corporate bonds.

This relates to housing in an indirect way—through investors. They might shift their savings from mortgage lenders, for example, into corporate bonds which would serve to tighten the money available for housing. An increase in corporate bond rates also affects mortgage interest rates through what is called the secondary mortgage market.

The secondary mortgage market is handled by the Federal National Mortgage Association, a private corporation that buys mortgages from lenders to make more money available for lending. The association, known as Fannie Mae, buys these mortgages at a discount which must be absorbed by someone, usually the builder or seller. Sometimes it is the buyer of a home, but no matter who pays, the discount translates into higher interest rates.

Fannie Mae then does its own borrowing in the money market. It is out to make a profit. In recent weeks, the discount has gone up dramatically. It has done so, sources say, because of lenders' speculation. The speculation at first centered on hope that mortgage interest rates would come down further. Brokers handling mortgages at the high-finance level waited before cashing in a number of them through Fannie Mae.

But interest rates bottomed out. The mortgage brokers who deal with Fannie Mae were caught. They tried to unload them quickly. A big, artificial demand was created for funds, pushing up interest rates.

The discount of Fannie Mae dropped to a low 92 per cent on the hundred. Fannie Mae President Oakley Hunter said the government should relieve the situation by raising the ceiling on Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration loans, now at 7 per cent.

But speculation is not the only reason advanced. When the economic recovery began this year, government economists said, an expansive monetary policy by the Federal Reserve brought down historically high rates.

"They may have overshoot their mark," or gone too low, said one. "Now, they may be finding a more stable level."

But also involved in the situation is that inflation will continue to be a problem. If the central bank's easier money policies become too easy, the argument goes, inflation will accelerate again.

Government officials are watching mortgage interest rates carefully, for an upward surge could damage President Nixon's goal of economic expansion this year.

Housing is being counted on to help lead the recovery, and higher interest rates could damage his goal of two million housing starts this year.

The real estate industry has been capitalizing on the talk about interest rates going up, creating a "buy now" psychology.

Scientists have found that everyone dreams four to six times a night. Each dream lasts between 15 and 20 minutes.

Steinmark Still an Inspiration

DALLAS, Tex., (AP) — Freddie Steinmark was a visitor in Houston's Astrodome last August and the play in the Texas High School Coaches All-Star game on the plastic rug below was ragged.

Father Fred Bomar, Steinmark's priest from Austin, Joe Blair, Akron, Ohio, 8, mid-big game jitters.

Texas' Steinmark just shook his head and said, "Can you imagine a game like this with no body wanting to win?"

Winning meant a lot to the Wheatridge, Colo., product.

Anyone 5-foot-10, 166-pounds playing big time college football would understand.

Steinmark met that challenge head-up. He whipped it good — like 19-0 in the games he started at defensive safety.

In the last game, his leg was sore. But he thought it only a bruise and a 166-pounder who wants to play can't baby himself.

Texas nipped Arkansas 15-14 in the collegiate "Game of the Century" but six days later Steinmark lost the leg to cancer.

Even the most optimistic Texas officials figured the osteogenic sarcoma was so fast-spreading that Freddie had less than six months to live.

But incredibly 20 days later he was on the bench as Texas defeated Notre Dame for the collegiate national championship.

The Longhorn players said afterward that the sight of Freddie, erect on his crutches on the sideline, was his inspiration.

"I couldn't have come back to the bench if we had lost and his looked Freddie in the eye," said

Baseball Draft Begins 2-Day Run

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Chicago White Sox selected catcher Danny Goodwin of Peoria, Ill., and the San Diego Padres picked pitcher John William Franklin of Vienna, Va., as the major league baseball draft opened today.

The White Sox, drafting first by virtue of the worst record in the American League last season, opened the regular phase of the draft by confirming the selection of Goodwin. The choice of the 17-year-old, 195-pounder from Peoria Central High School previously had been announced.

Then the Padres took Franklin.

The regular phase of the draft covers players never before selected by major league clubs, predominantly high school seniors. Some 62 per cent of those drafted sign.

Milwaukee, selecting third, took shortstop Thomas Bianco of Sewanaka High School in Elmont, N.Y. Montreal picked shortstop Condredge Holloway of Lee High School in Huntsville, Ala., and Kansas City took pitcher Roy Branch of Beaumont High School in St. Louis.

The drafting began today with the regular phase. That consists of selecting players never before drafted, predominantly high school seniors. The teams drafted in inverse order of their 1970 record with the Chicago White Sox selecting first. They say Danny Goodwin, a 17-year-old Peoria, Ill., will be their No. 1 pick.

Following the White Sox, in order, were: San Diego, Milwaukee, Montreal, Kansas City, Philadelphia, Washington, St. Louis, Cleveland, Atlanta, Detroit, Houston, California, New York Mets, Boston, Chicago Cubs, Oakland, San Francisco, New York Yankees, Los Angeles, Minnesota, Pittsburgh, Baltimore and Cincinnati.

Among the high schoolers expected to go before the first round ended were two pitchers—Roy Thomas of Impec H.S., Calif., and Roger Cuiroga of Ball H.S., Galveston, Tex. Others rated highly included infielders William Almon of Warwick Veterans H.S., Warwick, R.I. and Condredge Holloway of Lee H.S., Huntsville, Ala.

Safety in Football Discussed

By GORDON BEARD

Associated Press Sports Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — "No where in the world has an incidence of injury more frequent than American football," says a Baltimore neurosurgeon.

But when comparing deaths on the gridiron with those in some other sports, Dr. Charles M. Henderson said, "football seems almost sedentary."

"The hazards of ordinary driving of an automobile," Henderson told members attending the National Athletic Trainers Association, "are nine times greater for young men from the 15 to 22 years of age group than participation in football."

At a clinic Monday on head injuries, Henderson said it has been estimated that the average high school football player has a 20 per cent chance of being injured during the season, with an 8 per cent chance that the injury would be serious.

As for deaths, Henderson said a 1964 study showed a ratio of 3.9 for each 100,000 participants in football, or one for every three million man hours of exposure.

The death rate that year per 100,000 participants in other sports, he said, quoting an article from the Journal of the American Medical Association, was 16.7 for power boat racing, 120 for auto racing, 133.3 for horse racing and 278.6 for motorcycling.

During the past 20 to 30 years, Henderson said, "the football helmet has evolved from a simple leather head covering into a hard plastic container for the calvarium, complete with a plastic or metal facemask."

"It would seem, however, that in the process of evolution, the protective function of the helmet has been in some ways overlooked."

To reduce football injuries, the neurosurgeon suggested helmets be designed with a shorter face mask and more padding at the rear, while "spearing" or tackling with the helmet be curbed.

mors that Al McNeil will be replaced as coach of Montreal's Stanley Cup champions.

McNeil denied a published report Monday that he has stepped down or intends to give up the coaching job to take another position in the Canadiens' organization.

But neither he nor General Manager Sam Pollock ruled out the possibility of a coaching change before the conclusion of the meetings.

In other opening day developments, the NHL governors approved stiffer penalties for brawling players and the minor league draft session was wrapped up quickly with the selection of three goalies and veteran forward Irv Spencer by NHL clubs.

The intra-league draft was not expected to produce any startling moves, with each of the 14 NHL teams protecting 20 players, including two goaltenders, and first-year professionals exempt.

The drafting price is $40,000 per-player.

A Montreal newspaper reported that McNeil, who took over the Canadiens coaching job midway through last season, had advised Pollock he was resigning.

According to the report, McNeil, criticized sharply by some of his players, including veteran Henri Richard, during the playoffs, found his position "untenable."

In regular business, the league decided to assess game misconduct penalties plus $100 fines against players who leave their bench to join a fight on the ice.

The stiffer assessments are in line with NHL President Clarence Campbell's get-tough policy on brawls.

St. Louis Atlanta Tied

By ED SHEARER

Associated Press Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Ted Simmons, resolving an argument-filled 10th inning, got what he considered an undeserved chance to drive home the winning run Monday night, enabling the St. Louis Cardinals to maintain their half-game lead in the National League East.

"The umpires were 0-for-4," said losing pitcher Bob Priddy of Atlanta.

"As it worked out, it was best," Simmons said, "but my bunt was fair, no question about it."

The Cardinals, who tied the game with a four-run ninth, tallied the winning runs on Simmons' 10th-inning single after his bunted pop fly was ruled foul by Umpires Mel Steiner, who said Priddy had not touched the ball before it squirted into foul territory.

Priddy said after the game he had, indeed, got his glove on the ball.

Priddy disputed Steiner's first call of the inning that Matly Alou had been hit by a pitch.

Alou stole second after the bunt attempt and then scored to give the Cardinals a 7-6 victory when Simmons laced a single past first.

Only one other game was played in the major leagues Monday. Willie Stargell belted his 19th home run to spark Pittsburgh to an 11-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Priddy claimed that Alou was out at second on the stolen base and that Jose Cardenal was out later in the inning on what was ruled an infield single.

The latter play brought a heated argument from Atlanta first baseman Orlando Cepeda, who was ejected by umpire Bob Engel.

The Braves, using four hits each by Hank Aaron, Ralph Garr and Zolo Versalles, coasted into the ninth with a 6-2 lead. Right-hander Ron Reed, who had held the Cards to five hits, was touched for four before Priddy replaced him.

Ted Sizemore knocked Reed out of the game with a two-run double after two were out. Jerry McNertney greeted Priddy with a two-run double on an 0-2 pitch to tie it.

Pittsburgh had moved into a tie with the Cardinals in the NL East with its afternoon victory in the free-swinging affair at Chicago.

Four homers, helped by 20-mile-per-hour winds, sailed out of Wrigley Field. All were two run blows—by Stargell, Al Oliver and Bob Robertson of the Pirates and Billy Williams of the Cubs.

Stargell also stroked a run-scoring single, lifting his league-leading RBI total to 53.

Notes from Pro Golf Tournaments

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Golf Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) —

Notes from the pro golf tournament trail:

Arnold Palmer, Frank Beard and former Masters champion George Archer are among the prominent tourists concerned and annoyed with slow play on the regular tour events.

"Oh, man, I'd like to have your job for just one week," Palmer told a PGA official recently. "Just one week. I'll guarantee you we'd be playing faster or there'd be so many strokes put on these guys the scores would look like a member-guest tournament."

"Once—just once—I'd like to go out there and just play golf and not stand around half the day."

"It's absolutely ridiculous," Beard said. "We're taking 4½ and 5 hours to play 18 holes in a twosome. There's just no excuse for it. You can play that fast in a foursome on public links."

"I'm not going to name any names. You know who they are. Everyone out here knows who they are. They

Big Task Is Replacing Plunkett

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Hanging out some off-season college football wash:

Stanford's biggest task this fall will be replacing quarterback Jim Plunkett, the Heisman Trophy winner and all-time NCAA total offense leader. One thing Coach John Ralston doesn't lack is candidates.

Heading the list is Don Bunce, who backed up Plunkett in 1968 and 1969 but sat out last season with 1971 in mind. Bunce is described as an exciting and unpredictable performer, who has a knack for scrambling out of sticky situations.

Plunkett's understudy last year was Jesse Freitas and the Stanford people feel the picture passer could have performed along the lines of Washington's Sonny Sixkiller and Oregon's Dan Fouts, who broke in as sophomore standouts, had Plunkett been sidelined.

Mike Boryla, another 1970 reserve, combines equal ability as a passer and runner while Mike Gilyard, last year's frosh quarterback, is only 5-foot-11 and 170 pounds—the others are over 6 feet—but is an exciting performer who passed for 228 yards in a 35-34 thriller against the Southern Cal frosh.

You'd think a quarterback who completed 133 of 269 passes last fall for 1,871 yards and 15 touchdowns wouldn't have any trouble keeping his job.

But Oklahoma State's Tony Pounds, who compiled those impressive statistics but also threw 15 interceptions, is battling no less than five candidates—holdovers Mike Robichaux and John Ballard, sophomores Brent Blackman and Don Hardesty and transfer Gene Nichol.

Two years ago Wisconsin was touting a sensational sophomore running back named Greg Johnson and nicknamed "Grape Juice" after you know who. Injuries hampered him in 1969, although the 188-pound speedster set two school kickoff return records. Johnson was ineligible last season and has been converted into a defensive back.

There's a three-way battle to succeed Joe Theismann at Notre Dame. In the spring windup game, junior Jim Bulger completed seven passes for 97 yards, senior Pat Steenberge also hit on seven for 113 yards while sophomore Cliff Brown also connected on seven for 113 yards and kicked a 51-yard field goal.

The NCAA put in an 11th regular season game last fall but San Jose State has gone one better. The Spartans will play 12 games in each of four years starting with 1972. That's permissible, as long as the 12th game is against Hawaii. Nebraska visits the islands this December for a 12th contest.

San Diego State has been having trouble (1) scheduling major opponents and (2) getting into the Pacific Conference. The Aztecs have made a breakthrough of sorts, though, by lining up Pac-8 member Oregon State for games in 1972 and 1975.

Alabama and Mississippi are looking somewhat farther ahead. They've scheduled each other through 1987, except for the 1972-3 and 1978-9 periods.

Alabama got a surprise in its spring game sophomore Steve Dean carried 16 times for 86 yards to 14 and 70 for all-star candidate Johnny Musso.

College football's two leading pass-catchers returning next fall—Tom Gatewood of Notre Dame and Jean Fugett of Amherst—grew up on the same block in Baltimore. They both finished second nationally in their respective divisions last year.

If the name of Rod Paige, Texas Southern's new coach, has a familiar ring, it's probably because he spent five years as head coach at Jackson, Miss., State, turning out such future pros as Lem Barney (Lions), Verlon Biggs (Jets) and Harold Jackson (Eagles). Paige spent the past two seasons on the staff at the University of Cincinnati.

Curtis Gentry, a former defensive back with the Chicago Bears, has been named to the staff at Holy Cross, the school's first black coach in any sport.

Coach Bill Yeoman of Houston doesn't recruit far and wide. Nineteen of the 22 starters at the end of spring drills are from cities and towns as close as Dallas, a mere 250 miles up the road. The other three are from West Texas.

Bies Best in Monday's Rounds

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Don Bies, a touring pro from Seattle, Wash., fired a blazing nine-under-par 68-67-135 and Master champion Charles Coody was not too far behind at 140 as 72 professionals and amateurs qualified Monday for the U.S. Open Golf Championship.

Another 384 will battle Tuesday in Washington, St. Louis, New York, Pinehurst, N.C., and Pittsburgh for the remaining 43 berths in the tournament July 17-20 at the Merion Golf Club, Ardmore, Pa. Bies had Monday's best round among the 480 who fought for the 72 berths in sectional qualifying at Atlanta, Chicago, Cincinnati, Golden, Colo., Irving, Tex., Seattle and San Francisco.

Thirty-five of the game's top names were exempt from all qualifying.

Heading the list were the Open champions of the past five years—Billy Casper, Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Orville Moody and defending titlist Tony Jacklin of Britain.

Also exempt were the 1970 U.S. Amateur champion, Lanny Wadkins Jr., and the PGA champions of the past five years—Al Geiberger, Don January, Julius Boros, Ray Floyd and Dave Stockton.

Bies, 135 on the 6,883-yard Atlanta Country Club course gave him a one-stroke margin over Lou Graham of Nashville, Tenn.

Five were tied at 138 including Dave Eichelberger. And among other big names near the top were Hale Irwin at 139 and Romero Blancas and Coody at 140. There were 39 qualifiers in Atlanta.

Wright Asks for Speedier Trials

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Edward Wright of Little Rock, president of the American Bar Association, said Saturday night there was a critical need for speedier trials and reform in criminal justice. Wright was the commencement speaker at the University of Arkansas. More than 1,300 students received degrees in the university's 97th annual commencement exercises. Wright said that an acceleration of efforts by the bench and bar to bring about an improvement in the handling of criminal and civil cases was needed. The university honored Wright by presenting him with an honorary degree. Two others also received honorary degrees. They were Mrs. Jeannette Edris Rockefeller and William Grant Still of Los Angeles.

Pitcher B. Gardner Found Shot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bruce Gardner, former All-American college baseball player and minor league pitcher in the Los Angeles Dodgers organization, was found shot to death Monday on the baseball field at the University of Southern California, police said. Officers listed the death as an apparent suicide pending a coroner's report.

Police said the body of Gardner, 32, was found about 15 feet from the pitcher's mound at Bovard Field, where he had started from 1958 through 1960.

He held a diploma he received from USC in 1960 degree in his right hand and a pistol in his left, officers said, and his All-American certificate lay a few feet away.

Gardner compiled a 4-05 record in three seasons and played on the Trojans' 1958 NCAA champions. He was named an All-American by the national coaches' committee in 1960, when his record was 18-2.

After graduating from USC with a degree in physical education, he signed with the Dodgers for a small bonus and played four years, rising as high as Spokane of the Pacific Coast League in 1963.

A Dodgers spokesman said Gardner was considered a major league prospect, but he hurt his arm during military duty and broke an ankle during spring training in 1964. The Dodgers released him outright before the 1964 season.

A USC spokesman said Gardner was a physical education teacher at Dorsey High School in Los Angeles at the time of his death.

Charlotte 4-0 Over Arkansas

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Steve Luebber picked up his eighth victory of the season Monday night as he pitched Charlotte to a 4-0 victory over Arkansas.

Luebber, one of the hottest hurlers in the Dixie Association, allowed the Travelers only three hits. He has suffered only one loss this year.

The 21-year-old right-hander struck out eight and walked none to pick up his third shut-out of the season.

Rightfielder Bob Wessler and centerfielder Jorge Roque were the only Travelers who managed to get on base against Luebber. Wessler had a single and a double and Roque slammed a double into right field.

The Travelers managed to stay three games up on Memphis in the Central Division of the Dixie Association. Memphis split a doubleheader with Jacksonville. The Blues lost the opener 4-1, but took the nightcap 2-1.

In other Dixie action, San Antonio blanked Albuquerque 5-0, Columbus tripped Montgomery 5-3, Amarillo dumped Dallas-Fort Worth 11-2, Shreveport drilled Savannah 7-1 and Asheville bombed Birmingham 12-5.

Opening lead—♦ J

By Oswald & James Jacoby
With nine high-card points, South has almost a maximum JACOB Y MODERN weak two-bid. North has just enough to make a forcing two no-trump response. He has every intention of passing if South rebids three spades to show a minimum, but South rebids three hearts to show a maximum with something in hearts. This is enough for North to bid spade game.

The game contract is a good one, but the spade finesse is wrong and there is no play for four spades if a heart or club is opened.

When the hand was played in a rubber bridge game in Fort Worth, Texas, the bidding went just this way. West made his normal opening lead of the jack of diamonds.

South won in dummy and studied the hand for some time. He intended to try for a club discard on the third high diamond, but he wondered if he shouldn't play the ace of trumps first. It was just possible that this play might catch a singleton king of trumps or find king-small of trumps or a small singleton in a hand with just two diamonds. It would cost him a trick if the diamonds went three times and the trump finesse was on.

South decided to cash that ace of trumps and it was well that he did so. East did hold a singleton trump and only two diamonds so that without the trump play he would have been able to ruff the third diamond and keep South from getting a club discard.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS
The Liberty Tree was an old elm in Boston, Mass. In 1765, the Sons of Liberty hanged effigies of royal officials from it to protest against the Stamp Act. The World Almanac recalls. Throughout the 13 colonies, other liberty trees served as meeting places to denounce royal tyranny.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB
He Tells His Father-in-Law
By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb—I am 71 years old and taken for 50. My hair is not gray and there is plenty of it. I don't go to the doctor for a medical checkup or take any pills, but live the simple life. My 88-year-old father-in-law has been with us for several months. He had a hard life and he and his wife fought like two tom cats with their tails tied together and thrown across a wash line. When he came he had so much medicine that his dresser looked like a drugstore. The first thing I told him was to throw all those pills away.

I have never seen a man eat like this one. He amazes me. He eats twice as much as I do. He sits out in the sun every day and you should see his tan. I told him to start walking around for exercise. He went right from HELL to HEAVEN and no one knows it better than he. Before he came if he got a bath once a year he was lucky, scared to get into the tub. He loves the shower. The pants he had on would have stood up by themselves. He is a different man. Frankly he will probably outlive me. I am under the tension of having him under my feet 24 hours a day.

On the way down to Florida I stopped at two nursing homes and saw some relatives and friends. How pathetic. Sitting and waiting and paying $100 a week. What's the answer?

Now this is for your own information. I sure as hell am not looking for anything including a doctor. If I go, there won't be much gone. I have no illusions about this hereafter junk. I will be just like the mules I used to drag out in the fields. I will be put under and nine chances out of 10 go back to the earth—period.

Mrs. J.W. Smith

Mrs. J. W. Smith, 206 E. 16, became the first woman ever to make a hole-in-one at the Hope Country Club. Mrs. Smith made the hole-in-one at "old number nine" using a number two wood driver and a Harry Middlecoff ball which she found on the course. Playing in the threesome with Mrs. Smith were Mrs. Jim Pruden and Mrs. E. E. Wassell.

Wants Replanning of Districts

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Dale Bumpers said Monday that the state Board of Apportionment would redraw its reapportionment plans to include some multimember legislative districts.

The governor made the statement after being told of the U. S. Supreme Court decision Monday upholding multimember districts.

Cycle Wreck Kills Two

SPRINGDALE, Ark. (AP) — Two Washington County youths were killed Monday when the motorcycle they were riding collided with a pickup truck on a county road near Springdale.

State Police identified the two as Rex D. Drummond, 11, of Route 6, Fayetteville and Dale Allen Mays, 12, of Route 1, Springdale. Drummond was killed instantly in the crash and Mays died Monday night at a Springdale hospital.

The truck was driven by Ralph D. Pendergraph, 33, of Route 4, Springdale. He was not injured.

The flight of Apollo 14 and its successful mission has inspired Howard Shanks of Prescott, Ark. to compose a song in honor of the space explorers, with a copy of the words and music "Moon Princess" being sent to President Nixon and NASA.

Author of the music, one of several songs he has written also includes a song titled "Trigger and Me" which he dedicated to Roy Rogers in 1959 while living in Los Angeles.

Mr. Shanks recently received an acknowledgement of the song from the director of public service for National Aeronautics and Space Administration in Washington stating that the music will be forwarded to the office of Astronaut affairs at the manned space center in Houston, Tex. where the crew of Apollo 14

Blacks Meet With Bumpers in Protest

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A group of blacks held a rally Monday on the steps of the state Capitol to protest the Vietnam war and to air black grievances. Following the rally the group talked with Gov. Dale Bumpers about the plight of Negroes in Arkansas.

The Rev. Roy Laird of Cottor Plant reported to those who had attended the rally that while Bumpers was "very sympathetic to the cause of our problems, he was evasive in saying what he intended to do about it."

Laird, a black who is director of Community Organization Builds Absolute Teamwork, said that Bumpers must realize that when he fails to communicate with poor blacks and whites, "he's asking for riots all over the state of Arkansas."

Laird and the Elder Ezra Greer of Earle said Bumpers asked the group to submit to him a proposal covering such items as jobs, education, health and welfare for poor whites and blacks.

Bumpers told newsmen later that the conference was "a fairly pleasant meeting." He said the conversation principally was about jobs for poor persons.

He said he expressed concern and the steps that his administration was doing to develop training for the poor.

During the rally, Greer said: "This is just the first of a long, hot summer. There ain't no 'house nigger' going to stop no 'field nigger' from coming to town."

Laird said that Bumpers spoke of a large state parks improvement program while 50,000 to 60,000 people are "going to bed hungry every night."

Greer called for the employment of blacks in state government and said that for every Negro vote "we want a commitment."

Attack on Lockheed Is Determined

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate foes of the Nixon administration plan to shore up Lockheed Aircraft Corp. say they will demand a detailed breakdown of the defense supplier's cash position.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Monday he will request the public accounting from Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, who cautioned that Lockheed's financial survival could be seriously threatened if Congress delays action more than 40 days on a $250-million loan guarantee.

The Treasury secretary disagreed repeatedly Monday with Proxmire's contention a Lockheed rescue would undermine the free-enterprise system and set a bad precedent for other troubled corporations.

"We sometimes kid ourselves that this is a free-enterprise system," Connally told the Senate Banking Committee, "but it isn't all that free."

As the nation's largest defense contractor, he said, Lockheed has enormous cash needs which stretch or exceed the capacity of America's banks.

Connally said a Lockheed bankruptcy might seriously impair the nation's economic recovery.

The immediate consequences, he said, would be scrapping Lockheed's TriStar airbus project, the commercial equivalent of its costly Air Force C5 transport, with layoffs of tens of thousands of workers.

Stockholders would lose their investment, the government would lose hundreds of millions of tax dollars and completion of Lockheed's defense contracts would be in doubt, Connally said.

In California, Lockheed reported its first quarter earnings for the first quarter of 1971 were $8.3 million, or 73 cents a share. Earnings for the first quarter last year amounted to $5.1 million; 45 cents a share.

CUPERTINO, Calif. (AP) — All narcotics officers, FBI agents and members of the Central Intelligence Agency will get a cash discount on admission to student activities at Deanza Junior College.

The college's student council approved unanimously on Monday the 20 per cent discount for agents who show proper identification.

Marine Says He Was Hit by Jetliner

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The radar intercept officer who is the sole survivor of a collision between two planes that killed 50 persons says the commercial airliner hit the military craft he was aboard.

"After impact—the airliner hit us—we tumbled violently four or five times," 1st Lt. Christopher Schiess, 24, of Salem, Ore., told a news conference Monday. He did not elaborate.

Schiess parachuted from the Marine F4 Phantom jet Sunday night after the collision with a Hughes Air West DC9 jet.

The twin-engine Air West jet, carrying 44 passengers and a crew of five, exploded and burned in a dive from 12,000 feet after the collision.

The wreckage, at the bottom of a 2,000-foot-deep gorge, yielded the bodies of 22 persons Monday, three of them children.

The body of the F4 pilots, whose names were not revealed, was found in the fighter plane, crashed a mile away.

The bodies are being taken by helicopter to a temporary morgue on a baseball field in the town of Duarte five miles away. The crash site is in a barely accessible part of the jagged San Gabriel Mountains about 25 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

He said the fighter was using "visual rules," the "see and be seen" method, which meant it did not have to and had not filed an instrument flight rules route with air controllers.

FDA May Require Safety Proof

By G. DAVID WALLACE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration says it may require makers of new metallic and drug-treated contraceptives for women to prove the devices are safe and effective.

The proposal has thrown into doubt one firm's plans to begin marketing this summer a copper birth control device described as safer than other intrauterine devices and nearly as effective as pills.

Researchers in Sweden, Peru and the United States have said the new copper device appears to overcome the disadvantages of both the Pill and older intrauterine devices, popularly called IUD's.

Dr. Thomas P. Carney, senior vice president of research and development of G.D. Searle & Co., said his firm will submit evidence to the FDA on the safety and effectiveness of its copper and plastic Cu-7 device.

The FDA won't issue until next month a final ruling on whether the safety and efficacy issues must be answered. Then the agency would start considering whether the evidence submitted by the drug makers is adequate.

Such a decision probably would delay Searle's earlier marketing plans for several months at least.

A California firm, Alza Corp., has announced it hopes to market in about two years a once-a-year IUD which slowly releases hormones into the body.

Dr. Philip Walter of the FDA said scientists know that copper and other metals absorbed into the body can cause nerve damage and other side effects, and hormones are recognized cancer-causing agents. But whether the dosages involved with the new devices are dangerous remains to be seen, Walter said.

$1919*
Pinto 2 door
$66* less than VW 113

The little carefree car. Pinto is sized small, like the economy import, but it's bigger on value. And price is only the beginning. Pinto calls for only half as many oil changes as VW. One-sixth the chassis lube. So easy to service that you can do most routine maintenance yourself. And Pinto is bigger on performance. It has a 75-hp engine that has averaged over 25 mpg in simulated city/suburban driving. Sports-car type rack-and-pinion steering. Wider stance and lower silhouette.

*Ford's suggested retail price for Pinto and Maverick. However, the models shown are equipped with accent group (Pinto $60; Maverick $52) and white sidewall tires ($29). Destination charges, dealer preparation charges (if any), state and local taxes are extra.

Comparison based on manufacturers' suggested retail prices for closest comparable body styles of lowest priced models, comparably equipped.

$2175*
Maverick 2 door
$176* less than Nova 2 door

The Simple Machine. Maverick's price makes it simpler to own than Nova. But that's not the only reason we call it the Simple Machine. Maverick's simple to drive and park because of its shorter wheelbase and smaller turning circle. Simple to service because it's been designed that way. Maverick offers a 4-door sedan for a low price of $2235* ($145 less than Nova 4 door). Or choose the sporty Grabber model. A choice of an economical V-8 and three thrifty Sixes.
